Introduction To get started with Photoshop, a person needs to know which programs to buy. Photoshop is often sold with a choice of DVD software to add the program to your laptop or computer, or you can buy the software online. If you purchase Photoshop without a hardware upgrade, Photoshop will not be activated online, and activation and functionality is only available by DVD. It's important to note that Adobe Photoshop CS5 Extended and later (CS5, CS6, CC, CC 2014, CC 2015) is sold with a standard version (CS5) and a DVD version (CS5 Extended) of the software. Standard versions of Photoshop are sold at a discount compared with the DVD versions. The standard version is available online at discount prices, while the DVD version is more expensive. The software license is good for the lifetime of the product. If the software is upgraded with a later version, it can be activated with the version installed on the computer. New features and enhancements are added with every version, making the newer the software, the more efficient it is. The software supports Windows XP, Windows Vista, Windows 7, Windows 8, and later, or Mac OS X, including OS X 10.6.8 and later. Although Photoshop, like most applications, requires a considerable amount of space on the hard drive, the data is backed up to the user's hard drive or online if there's a connection to the Internet, and the software can be installed on more than one computer. In the rest of this article, "Windows" refers to operating systems that run on computers with operating systems based on the MS Windows family of operating systems, such as Windows XP or later, as well as on computers with Mac OS X operating systems. Getting started with Photoshop After purchasing Photoshop, you need to activate it. For the DVD version of Photoshop, a standard activation code is included, which can be easily installed online with a few clicks, or printed out and taken to the store. Once the activation is complete, Photoshop is installed on your computer. The computer must meet minimum requirements for installation, such as a compatible operating system, a video card with at least 16MB of RAM and an available graphics card, a hard drive with at least 10MB free space, and a broadband connection for the Internet. Windows Vista Business, Windows Vista Ultimate, and Windows 8 Pro and Enterprise systems cannot be installed on systems with 64-bit versions of those operating systems

I do not know where to get the number of hops a user has done with gchat. The problem is that the number of hops is not retrieved when a user chat in a new activity and re-sends the chat. I know for how many days are there in between two hops and I am not needing the next hour. There is an event that i can use to calculate the time in a day, but I still need the number of hops.
